Boat Club Abandoned Meet.

The Nameaug Boat club of New London on Wednesday evening decided not to hold the proposed meet with the Chelsea Boat club on Labor day. It developed, when the two clubs came together for the arrangements, that the Chelsea could not come until 3 o'clock in the afternoon, which would not allow time for the land and water events planned. The meet may be held next season.

The club elected J. W. Libby as commodore. The joint outing was to be at Browning's Beach, and the Chelsea Boat club members were enthusiastic for the outing, and there was a strong sentiment in favor of it among the Nameaug's committee, which had been in conference with the Chelsea committee, but the Nameaug membership was against it, and there will consequently be no outing.

The bride's gown was of white net trimmed with Irish lace over silk. She wore a bridal veil, caught with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses. During the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Father Murphy, pastor, Miss Ella Murphy rendered "O Promise Me." Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents in Talcottville, after which a wedding breakfast was served.

National Traveling Men.

Many young men look forward to a position as a commercial traveler, when, with grips and sample trunks, they shall be about the world, selling their wares while the "house" foots the expense account. It is a great business, and profitable to many; also frequently the stepping stone to better things. But it has its disadvantages, such as poor hotels, and the necessity of getting business. Perhaps the young man who feels the lure of the road had better enter politics. There are to be found the traveling salesman, to sell, nothing to do, and a liberal expense allowance from the "house," which is the treasury. Look over these national traveling men and see if commerce offers anything so fine. One group of twenty or more senators and representatives is doing Europe, cruising up and down rivers and canals and seeing the sights, while the government pays the bill. Another bunch of legislators is going to look around. Perhaps they will continue the journey to the Orient. No doubt the "house" will stand for it. Another group has been touring the cool mountain states, irrigating projects and trout are found. Nothing to sell, nothing to do, and a liberal expense allowance from the "house," which is the treasury. Look over these national traveling men and see if commerce offers anything so fine. One group of twenty or more senators and representatives is doing Europe, cruising up and down rivers and canals and seeing the sights, while the government pays the bill. Another bunch of legislators is going to look around. Perhaps they will continue the journey to the Orient. No doubt the "house" will stand for it. Another group has been touring the cool mountain states, irrigating projects and trout are found. Nothing to sell, nothing to do, and a liberal expense allowance from the "house," which is the treasury. Look over these national traveling men and see if commerce offers anything so fine.
